

and Caucuses

Primaries and Caucuses |
 Candidates |
 States to Watch |
 Issues |
 Money |
 Debates

DEMOCRATIC CAUCUSES January 19, 2008

Race	Status	Candidate	State Del.*	%	Del*	Precincts
Nevada Updated 1:09 p.m. EDT, Jan 22, 2008		Clinton	5,355	51%	12	98% reporting
		Obama	4,773	45%	13
		Edwards	396	4%	0
		Uncommitted	31	0%	0
		Kucinich	5	0%	0
		Richardson	0	0%	0

County Results Entrance Poll

Full Nevada Democratic Entrance Poll »

DEMOCRATIC VOTE BY GENDER

DEMOCRATIC VOTE BY AGE

REPUBLICAN CAUCUSES January 19, 2008

Race	Status	Candidate	State Del.*	%	Del*	Precincts
Nevada Updated 1:09 p.m. EDT, Jan 22, 2008		Romney	22,649	51%	18	100% reporting
		Paul	6,087	14%	4
		McCain	5,651	13%	4
		Huckabee	3,616	8%	2
		Thompson	3,521	8%	0
		Giuliani	1,910	4%	1
		Hunter	890	2%	0
		Tancredo	0	0%	0

County Results Entrance Poll

Full Nevada Republican Entrance Poll »

REPUBLICAN VOTE BY GENDER

REPUBLICAN VOTE BY AGE

Special Notes

- Del* - The delegate column shows the most recent estimated number of pledged delegates from this state
- How CNN projects winners
- More about the delegate selection process
- Exit polls are a survey of selected voters taken soon after they leave their voting place. Pollsters use this sample information, collected from a small percentage of voters, to track and project how all voters or a specific segments of the voters sided on a particular race or ballot measure. Because of the nature of caucuses, these polls are conducted as voters enter a caucus venue and are known as entrance polls. How to read entrance or exit polls
- Candidates are ranked in order of votes or state delegates received during primaries and caucuses, and not by the most recent estimated number of pledged delegates.
- Closed caucuses: Only registered party members may participate in their party's caucuses, but independents may register as a Democrat on caucus day
- State Del* - Instead of releasing caucus vote totals, the Nevada Democratic Party releases the number of delegates elected to county conventions that each candidate will receive.