FINAL PROJECTION

NATION'S BELLWETHER LIKELY TO SELECT CLINTON, MCCAIN

Cincinnati, OH--New York Senator Hillary Clinton (D) and Arizona Senator John McCain (R) appear ready to win the popular vote in their respective primaries on Tuesday.

After allocation of undecided Democratic voters to the candidates they are most likely to support, the Democratic presidential primary race stands at Clinton 51.3 percent and Obama 42.3 percent.

After allocation of undecided Republican voters to the candidates they are most likely to support, McCain receives 53.4 percent of the Republican primary vote and Huckabee receives 23.7 percent.

These findings are based on the latest Ohio Poll, conducted by the University of Cincinnati's Institute for Policy Research. The Ohio Poll is sponsored by the University of Cincinnati. Six hundred twenty four (624) probable Democratic primary voters and three hundred thirty (330) probable Republican primary voters were interviewed between February 28 and March 2, 2008. The potential sampling error for the Democratic primary race is $\pm 3.9\%$. The potential sampling error for the Republican primary race is $\pm 5.4\%$.
